v.) C.A. No. 04-1337- JJF
NIKON CORPORATION, et al.,) (Consolidated) Defendants.)

SPECIAL MASTER'S REPORT AND RECOMMENDATIONS
REGARDING THE RESTRUCTURING OF PENDING
HONEYWELL CASES (04-1337, 04-1338, 04-1536, 05-874)

Having considered the written submissions of all interested parties and having conducted multiple hearings, the Special Master recommends: (1) consolidating the four pending actions under C.A. No. 04-1337;¹ (2) joining all of the Manufacturer Defendants in a single trial; (3) creating two alternative scheduling tracks through trial of the Manufacturer Defendants; and (4) entering a scheduling order for Customer Defendants.

I. Single Trial – All Issues Against All Manufacturer Defendants

Given the complex procedural history related to the Honeywell cases as outlined in the August 13, 2008 Report and Recommendation, and with only five Manufacturer Defendants remaining, the Special Master concludes that proceeding with a single trial against all Manufacturer Defendants is the most efficient and least complicated path for the Court. Additionally, the Special Master notes that only a single claim (claim 3 of U.S. Patent No. 5,280,371) and a limited number of claim terms are in dispute, and that given the nature of the relevant technology, it is expected that proof of infringement, invalidity, etc. can be relatively straightforward. The Special Master, therefore, disagrees with those Manufacturer Defendants which suggest that multiple trials are necessary because a jury would be confused by multiple accused LCD modules of different Manufacturer Defendants.

The Special Master is aware that during a March 13, 2006 teleconference, Judge Jordan directed that the invalidity and unenforceability phase would precede the infringement phase. The Special Master concludes, however, that it would be prejudicial to Plaintiff Honeywell not to structure the trial in the traditional manner. The Special Master sees no compelling reason to forestall the presentation of Honeywell's infringement claims in favor of first determining invalidity or unenforceability.

II. Single Trial Against All Customer Defendants

Similarly, the Special Master concludes that proceeding with a single trial against all remaining Customer Defendants is the most efficient and least complicated path for the Court. While eleven Customer Defendants remain stayed in this case, the Special Master has established a procedure for both voluntary dismissals as well as motion practice for dismissal.² The single trial against the Customer Defendants would also proceed in the traditional manner, similar to the trial against the Manufacturer Defendants.

III. Scheduling Through Trial

A. Alternative TRACKS 1 and 2

To accommodate the interests of all defendants in an efficient manner, the Special Master proposes 2 alternative scheduling tracks for this case. Attachment 1 provides the TRACK 1 schedule, and Attachment 2 provides the TRACK 2 schedule.³ The tracks diverge once the Markman decision issues. By providing two scheduling tracks, remaining Customer Defendants are given the opportunity to weigh in on Markman.⁴ TRACK 1 is the faster path providing for a July 2009 trial date. TRACK 2 provides for a November 2009 trial date.

² See schedule concluding in the December 4, 2008 hearing for motions to dismiss. (D.I. 1201 in C.A. No. 04-1338)

Both tracks give the Customer Defendants time to evaluate Markman related discovery, the claim construction briefing, and the Markman decision. In this regard, Honeywell has agreed to provide Markman related discovery including infringement contentions to all Customer Defendants by October 1, 2008. Also, both tracks give the Customer Defendants 7 days after the Markman decision issues to either stipulate to Markman or request supplementation of the claim construction briefing. By stipulating to the Markman decision, the case may proceed on TRACK 1 and the earlier July trial date. If any one Customer Defendant, however, does not stipulate and instead requests supplementation of the claim construction briefing, the case proceeds on TRACK 2 and the later November trial date.

The Special Master's reasoning for the remaining issues on the scheduling tracks, such as discovery motions, expert discovery, case dispositive motions, etc., are evident from the TRACK 1 and TRACK 2 charts. For convenience, the Special Master provides reasons for each scheduling event in both the TRACK 1 and TRACK 2 charts.

B. Second Wave Customer Defendants

Once those Customer Defendants that will remain in the case have been identified, the Special Master will conduct a status hearing with those Customer Defendants and Honeywell to establish a schedule through trial.

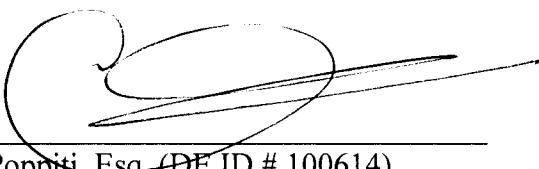

IV. Conclusion

For the reasons set forth above, the conclusions reached, the guidelines provided, and the schedule established constitute the Special Master's Report and Recommendations to the Court.

⁴ Because the Customer Defendants have been stayed since late 2005/early 2006, those defendants did not have the opportunity to participate in Markman.

THE SPECIAL MASTER'S REPORT WILL BECOME A FINAL ORDER OF THE COURT, UNLESS OBJECTION IS TAKEN IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE ANTICIPATED ORDER BY THE COURT WHICH SHORTENS THE TIME WITHIN WHICH AN APPLICATION MAY BE FILED PURSUANT TO FEDERAL RULE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE 53(f)(2).

ENTERED this 24th day of September, 2008.

Honeywell to produce all communications with customer defendants regarding accused products, to the extent not already done	October 15, 2008	October 15, 2008

THE PARTIES' PROPOSED SCHEDULES

	Supplemental Markman Briefing and Final Markman Ruling	Honeywell's Proposal¹	Defendants' Proposal
Customer Defendants may request supplemental claim construction briefing regarding Preliminary Markman ruling; Customer Defendants must make showing of what discovery is needed not already of record	October 1, 2008	The latter of 7 days after final ruling on Customer Defendants Motions to Dismiss or 7 days after the Preliminary Markman ruling ²
Hearing on Customer Defendants' request for consideration of supplemental claim construction briefing and additional discovery related to claim construction – decision at hearing	October 2, 2008	The latter of 9 days after final ruling on Customer Defendants Motions to Dismiss or 9 days after Preliminary Markman ruling ³
Customer Defendants to conduct discovery regarding claim construction and filing of supplemental claim construction brief (same page limits as that for opening claim construction brief).	October 23, 2008	30 days from hearing on Customer Defendants' request for consideration of supplemental claim construction briefing
Honeywell to file opposition claim construction brief (same page limits as that for opposition claim construction brief).	November 4, 2008	10 days from Customer Defendants' supplemental claim construction brief
Final Markman Ruling	TBD by Judge Farman	TBD by Judge Farman

² All references to days are calendar days.

³ Defendants propose that the Preliminary Markman ruling automatically becomes the Final Markman ruling if (a) the Customer Defendants do not request supplemental claim construction briefing or (b) the Customer Defendant's request for supplemental claim construction briefing is denied. As stated at the hearing on September 4, 2008, depending upon the date that such contingencies become a reality, Honeywell submits that it may be necessary to set a reasonable date certain for the triggering of the expert phase.
